(7) Brief project description:

The Don Pedro Project is located on the Tuolumne River in western Tuolumne County, California, along the western slope of the Sierra Nevada. The existing FERC Project Boundary extends from river mile (RM) 53.2 to approximately RM 80.8 of the Tuolumne River. The Tuolumne River is a tributary to the San Joaquin River, which eventually flows into the Sacramento-San Joaquin River Delta, thence to San Francisco Bay. The Don Pedro Hydroelectric Project lies about 40 miles east of the City of Modesto and 26 miles northeast of the City of Turlock. A portion of the Don Pedro Hydroelectric Project occupies United States land, administered by the United States Department of Interior (USDOI) Bureau of Land Management (BLM) as part of the Sierra Resource Management Area. All other lands within the existing Project Boundary are either owned jointly by TID and MID or are private lands under easement.

The Don Pedro powerhouse and its electrical switchyard are located immediately downstream of the dam at RM 54.6. The Don Pedro Reservoir has a normal maximum water surface elevation of 830 feet (ft) above mean sea level. The existing FERC Project Boundary at the upper end of the reservoir extends to a water surface elevation of 845 ft at RM 80.8. The maximum water surface elevation resulting from the spillway design flood is estimated to be 852 ft. The drainage area of the Tuolumne River at Don Pedro Dam is approximately 1,533 square miles (mi²) (ACOE 1972).

The Don Pedro Project was formerly referred to as the New Don Pedro Project (and the Don Pedro Dam was referred to as the New Don Pedro Dam) because it displaced the original, smaller Don Pedro Dam and powerhouse, which was located approximately 1.5 miles upstream of the current dam. The old Don Pedro Dam remains in place.
